What was the session about?

- The session was about perception and sensitivity which are humans developed, the reasons were unknown.
- We, humans categorized ourselves male, female, rich, poor, religion, caste these are not important at all this session is about we being humans.
- We being humans made these classifications for the reasons unknown.
- This session about in social interaction what was the inherent bias that come in.

What liked about the session?

- I liked the way that the speaker said about the World at War in 2020.
- History keeps repeating but we never learn from it, perception either prejudice with the history or we refuse to change.
- There are lot of mistakes that our previous guys did, and we should continue them and we should not carry the burden of history on our shoulders.
- I liked the way that the speaker said about what kind of perceptions that we should have on our physical appearances.

Something I did not liked in this session:

- I didn't liked the way that people have their perceptions about physical appearances of other people.
- They are classifying themselves as fat, thin, fair, handsome etc.,
- It doesnot matter whether you are tall or short, young or old.

My takeaways from the session:

- Inorder to judge anyone we should think about the perception from their side also.
- We should not have perception of some one by their physical apperences.
- We all are human beings and we should be treated equally.
